Midwest Conference on Child Sexual Abuse

Welcome! The University of Wisconsin–Madison and Family Sexual Abuse Treatment, Inc., are proud to bring you the 27th Annual Midwest Conference on Child Sexual Abuse. Join us this year for over 40 institutes and workshops on prevention, investigation, and treatment issues for victims and offenders.

Whether you are an experienced professional or new to the field; if you work as a therapist, child protection worker, law enforcement officer, attorney, medical professional, or in any position with a need to know about child sexual abuse treatment, this highly regarded conference offers you the very latest information.

This conference takes place at the beautiful Marriott Madison West Hotel and Convention Center. This spacious facility is three miles west of Madison on Hwy. 12 (also known as the Beltline), in Middleton, Wis. We have been working hard to keep the conference affordable and have negotiated a great room rate of $81/single ($90/double) at the Marriott this year.

After completing this conference, you will be able to:

- Apply state-of-the-art assessment methods when working with sexually abused children, adults who were abused as children, and offenders.
- Apply state-of-the-art treatment methods when working with sexually abused children, adults who were abused as children, and offenders.

Plenary Speakers

The Body Keeps Score: Integration of Mind, Brain, and Body in the Treatment of Trauma

Bessel van der Kolk, MD

Oct. 24, 8:30 am

Over the past few years, new insights into trauma's impact on the body and brain have spawned a range of new treatment approaches. Neuroscience research has elucidated how, in the course of development, children learn to regulate their arousal systems and to focus on what is most relevant. Trauma, abuse, and neglect derail these processes and affect brain development. Since traumatic imprints are stored in sub-cortical brain areas and are largely divorced from verbal recall, the focus needs to be on the somatic experiencing of trauma-related sensations and affects. These deep imprints are the engines for continuing maladaptive behaviors. We will explore the role of body-oriented therapies, neurofeedback, yoga, theater, IFS, and EMDR in resolving the traumatic past and discuss the integration of these approaches during different stages of treatment.

Why Expressive Therapies Have Potential to Assist Trauma Resolution

Eliana Gil, PhD

Oct. 25, 8:30 am

In this session we will address how play can help uncover, identify, and allow for the processing of traumatic experiences. The value of expressive therapies for those who have suffered trauma will be emphasized. A review of the neuroscience and why therapeutic value is gained by expressive therapies will be discussed and demonstrated.

"I thought he was my friend..." The Internet— A Molester's Paradise

Jim Holler, Chief of Police (retired)

Oct. 25, 10:30 am

This session will define the two most prevalent sexual offenders who use the internet for computer-aided sexual exploitation; the situational offender and the preferential offender. It will also provide investigators, service providers, and parents with a glimpse of what children may encounter on a daily basis while on the Web. Participants will learn what to look for and what tools are available to them to fend off these types of offenders. Information for parents will be provided with the knowledge needed to oversee their child's use of the computer along with the basic steps they can take to help assure the safety of their children while surfing the Internet.

Institutes 39-42

Institute 39

Strengthening Parent-Child Relationships and Attachment: An Integrated Approach Using Evidence-Based Principles

Eliana Gil, PhD

This institute will discuss typical parent-child difficulties focused on attachment problems. It will review the major evidence-based programs (PCIT, PCP, Theraplay, and COS) and summarize the basic principles of each model.

It also will provide a series of integrated interventions designed to increase attunement, and provide parents and children with different experiences of each other, challenging established Internal Working Models.

Institute 40

Treating Complex Trauma in Adolescents and Young Adults

John Briere, PhD

Cheryl Lanktree, PhD

Based on their new book, Treating Complex Trauma in Adolescents and Young Adults (Sage, 2011), the presenters outline an empirically validated, culturally sensitive therapy that combines various intervention approaches to treat multiply traumatized youth. Topics include cognitive-emotional processing, trigger intervention, mindfulness, family/caretaker treatment, and issues such as substance abuse, self-mutilation, and aggression.

Institute 41

Nuts and Bolts of Treatment of Adult and Adolescent Sex Offenders

Anna Salter, PhD

Treatment programs often split between those that see sex offenders as lost souls and those that see sex offenders as predators. This workshop will take the view that sex offenders fall on a continuum between lost souls and predators. Treatment programs must be able to meet the needs both types of offenders. The treatment providers must also make decisions about both the process and the content of treatment. Regarding process, this workshop includes information on how and why to address denial, when and how to confront, and how to keep the connection with the offender through the process of confronting. Regarding content, this workshop includes information on which treatment components are empirically supported, and which theories of treatment have been validated empirically. Treatment efficacy—both short- and long-term—will be discussed.

Institute 42

Critical Issues in Sibling Sexual Abuse: Assessment, Treatment, and Re-Integration

Geraldine Crisci, MSW

In this institute, the clinical and research literature and clinical features of sibling sexual abuse will be reviewed. Topics include: separation of victim and offender; joint interviews with victim and offender; and the roles of key service providers (police, protective services, probation, and mental health). The critical role of full family participation in the assessment and treatment process will be outlined. Case examples demonstrate a working model to address issues of safety, loyalty, engagement, and minimization. Re-unification of the family will be addressed including best practice protocols, issues, and problems.

This institute will review a comprehensive assessment and treatment model focusing on the re-integration and re-unification of siblings. Case examples will illustrate different types of family situations, including age differentials, including best practice protocols, issues and problems.

Institutes 43-46

Institute 43

Empirically Informed, Play-Based Trauma Interventions for Sexually Abused Children and Adolescents
Sueann Kenney-Noziska, MSW, LISW, LCSW, RPT-S

This institute will emphasize play-based trauma interventions for clinical practice with children and adolescents who have experienced sexual abuse. Lecture, case examples, and experiential activities will be utilized to create a comprehensive learning experience. An emphasis will be placed on ensuring participants receive play therapy interventions they can readily incorporate into their practice.

Institute 44

Narrative, Collaborative and Transformative Justice Therapies for the Effects of Incest and Sexual Abuse
Walter H. Bera, PhD, LP, LMFT

Participants will learn new, innovative, and creative therapy approaches for working with those who have experienced or perpetrated sexual abuse. Narrative, Collaborative and Restorative/Transformative Justice Approaches and Practices can lead you to experience new enthusiasm in your life and work, while you provide new possibilities for the multiple parties affected by past sexual abuse. You will learn new paradigms and skills to overcome the common dilemmas facing therapists, social-service workers, and criminal justice professionals.

The institute will be illustrated with actual clinical videotapes and cases studies, detailed handouts and role-plays for working with children, adolescents, or adults who have perpetrated or experienced incest, child molestation, sexual compulsivity, clergy sexual abuse, and more. Past participants of this highly rated session have found it both profound and pragmatic, providing fresh ideas and practices they can begin to use immediately to renew their lives and work.

Institute 45

Complexities of Trauma: Exploring the Natural Cycles of Change
Mary Jo Barrett, MSW

This training is designed to provide clinicians with an in-depth opportunity to pursue a greater understanding and professional competency in the area of Complex Trauma. We will explore trauma from a multi-contextual lens. The institute will cover training through developmental stages and relational context, taking into account the nuances of gender, age, race, culture, etc. The format for this institute will be a combination of didactic lectures, group discussions, and video tape examples. Clinicians will explore the complexities of trauma through the lens of the Collaborative Stage Model—a highly effective multiple-component model. This institute will be beneficial to clinicians working in the public and private sectors who want to learn a cutting-edge, integrated approach to treating trauma, abuse, and Complex PTSD.

Institute 46

Implementing Trauma-Focused Cognitive Behavioral Therapy
Jennifer Wilgocki, MS, LSCW

If you plan to attend this institute you are asked to complete the 10-hour, Web-based TF-CBT training (www.tfcbt.musc.edu) before the institute. In addition to an overview of the components, this group spends time addressing advanced TF-CBT issues: the challenges of caregiver involvement, how to measure desensitization, maintaining fidelity to the model, tips for sustaining the practice, and case examples. In the afternoon you'll hear from clients who have received TF-CBT.
